CAROLYN COLEMAN

Plans Piano Solo For Local Contest

Nine years training in piano, plus three and one-half summers spent learning organ techniques are only part of the qualifications of an attractive entry to the Miss Appomatox Beauty Contest. For Carolyn Faye Coleman, now a senior at Appomatox High, competition is nothing new. She has been a Homecoming Princess two years voted 'most likely to succeed" as a Senior, and in last year's Hymn Playing Tournament at Longwood College she was given the only "perfect score", 100 points.

FPA members at Appomatox High elected her their Sweetheart. She has been a member of the Beta Club three years, a cheerleader for four years and captain one year.

At present Carolyn is a candidate for State YWA Chairman and received a YWA Citation in February. Locally, she is YWA president.

Carolyn, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Twyman Coleman, plans a musical education for her entry in the Junior Woman's Club Beauty Pageant April 16.

Honor Club Collects For Red Cross

The weather Tuesday night was windy and quite cool, but eight 4-H members with warm hearts and a willingness to help others canvassed part of the town of Appomatox collecting funds for the Red Cross.

Response was very good, according to County Fund Drive chairman Reverend M. G. Stimpson. County goal is $2,000, almost twice the amount collected last year. Mrs. Ben Marshall is house-to-house canvas chairman.

The 4-Her's on the march Tuesday are members of the Honor Club, the 4-H organization composed of members of high achievement in club activities. Those who helped: N. H. Jones, Ann Carol Dickerson, Fayne Dickerson, Joe Terry, Lynda Hall, Betty Jo Richardson, Jimmy Martin, and Richard Martin.

Rev. Stimpson told the young people the Red Cross funds would be used to pay for Blood-mobile administration costs, would help Appomattox servicemen and women, and would help provide for other services rendered by Mrs. Don Moses, Home Service worker. An active Red Cross chapter in Appomattox will mean help for people in distress, he said.

Farmers Vote Leaf Controls

If the fire cured tobacco vote here on February 28 reflects the general vote throughout the Virginia, Kentucky, and Tennessee, then the present tobacco program for fire-cured growers will continue with penalties on marketings of 'excess' tobacco, and price supports on the 1964, 1965, and 1966 crops of fire cured tobacco.

In Appomattox 437 voted in favor of the present program and 17 against. Total vote was about approximately 62 per cent of the eligible voters, according to ASCS office manager, Newton Jennings. Results of the entire vote were not available at press time.

"Strange-Acting" Fox Killed Sunday

The head of a gray fox, killed Sunday morning by Lawrence Clements of Route 1, Appomattox, has been sent to Richmond Clements, looking over his cattle in a field close to his home, said a fox "kept coming at me." When the fox got within ten feet, and still did not turn to run away, Clements shot him.

Graham Pitsenberger, county sanitarian, said such examinations are routine if animals, wild or domesticated, "act strangely." Pitsenberger said that there is no known rabies in this county, that the dog vaccination program seems to be effective in controlling rabids. Such vaccination, mandatory for all dogs, is supposed to be effective for three years, he said Pitsenber said Monday night that anyone who is bitten by an animal, either wild or domestic, which "acts strangely" should report to his physician immediately.

Panel Will Discuss Discipline

A psychiatrist, a minister, and a teacher will make up the panel for a discussion on the theme, "Child Problems," at the March 19 meeting of the Appomattox Elementary School P-TA. Meeting time: 8 p.m.

Discipline, Early Training for Discipline, "Why Discipline", and Effective Means of Disciplining the Child" will be discussed by a panel composed of Dr. Terrell Wingfield, a psychiatrist of Lynchburg, Dr. Arthur Brown minister of the Peakland Baptist Church, Lynchburg, and Mrs. Julian Hesson, 7th grade teacher, who will serve on the panel to answer any questions relating to school discipline.

Reverend Millard G. Stimpson Character and Spiritual Education Committee chairman of the P-TA, says that following the formal discussion period, there will be time for a question and answer period. "We are asking that questions be written out prior to the meeting and mailed to or given to Millard G. Stimpson, P-TA president Billy Conner, or Principal Randall Hill," he said. "Other questions, however, may be brought to the meeting, or written out during the discussion."

Dr. Wingfield, the psychiatrist scheduled to speak, is a graduate of Duke University School of Medicine, with internship and residency at the University of Virginia Hospital. Dr. Wingfie'd holds staff appointments at the local hospitals of Lynchburg, having served as Chief of Psychiatric Service at these hospitals. In addition to his private practice of psychiatry, Dr. Wingfield is college psychiatrist for Randolph-Macon Woman's College, Sweet Briar College and Lynchburg College.

Underground Microwave Relay Station

Workmen are busy with construction of the AT&T microwave facility being built atop Spears Mountain in Buckingham County. The huge underground building is scheduled for completion in July, with installation of equipment to take an additional nine months, according to Frank E. Smith, AT&T supervising engineer.

Relay Station Being Built By AT&T

Direct dialing and the new micro-wave station being built atop Spears Mountain represent two of the many improvements in telephone transmission being developed by American Telephone and Telegraph Company.

Construction of the Spears Mountain site, located approximately seven miles east of Bent Creek and three miles north of U. S. 60 in Buckingham county, is expected to be complete in July, according to Frank E. Smith, AT&T supervising engineer.

Underground Installation

The huge facility, 30,000 square feet underground, was started in December and is expected to be placed in operation early next year. The George A. Fuller Co. of New York is general contractor. Bruce H. Meyer is project manager.

The station is part of a nationwide construction program by AT&T. There are three such micro-wave stations planned for Virginia, one in North Carolina, and one in Maryland, according to Smith.

At the Spears Mountain location removal of some 80,000 cubic yards of dirt will result in an excavation approximately 200 by 200 feet and 45 feet deep.

The project manager, Bruce H. Meyer, said that about 120 men are presently employed in various phases of the project and the number will increase to around 200 as the building program progresses. Construction is expected to be completed in July.

About 50 specialists will then install equipment in the facility, Smith said, requiring an additional nine months before the facility is operational.

When in operation, the station will require less than a dozen men to operate it.

When completed, the building will be about 100 feet square and 30 feet high with two floors. It will be heavily reinforced and completely under ground except for an entrance building. A hard surfaced parking lot, 160 by 60 feet, will also be built, he said.

Long Distance Calls

Smith explained that microwave transmission carries long distance calls, that at least part of every long distance call made today probably is carried by microwave. "Eventually all telephone will be underground," he said. "When you make a call, you cannot tell whether it is being transmitted by wire or microwave," he said.

Both local labor and imported workers are assisting in the Spears Mountain project, with a number of newcomers in the Appomattox area.

License Fees Now $15.00

The Commissioner of Motor Vehicles today issued an appeal for public cooperation during the automobile license renewal period beginning March 15.

In a prepared statement, Commissioner C. W. Lamb pointed out that the more than 1,800,000 auto license applications had been manufactured, sorted as to post offices and prepared for mailing prior to the recent enactment of the new auto fee hikes. "Of primary interest to the average motorist", said C. H. Lamb, "is the fact that passenger cars weighing 4,000 pounds or less will be required to pay $15.00 for new 1964 license plates. Those weighing over 4,000 pounds are charged a flat fee of $20.00 when accompanied by a proper certification of liability insurance," he explained.

"License application forms were mailed to Virginia Motor vehicle owners on March 8, and should be received in the next several days. To those motorists who apply for new license plates by mail, inclusion in their applications of the correct new fee will avoid inconvenience and delay and enable us to process this work on a current basis," Lamb explained.

Other fee hikes passed by the Legislature on an emergency basis and effective March 14, include:

1. A minimum truck fee of $17.00, with other larger trucks proportionately higher;

2. A title fee of $5.00 and a fee of $5.00 for supplemental lien titles.

Contained Lee-Grant Room

Grant's Headquarters Century Ago Razed Following Collapse Of Wall

General Grant's headquarters, the two days preceding Appomattox, lies in ruins in nearby Farmville, the aftermath to a crashing collapse of a huge section of Prince Edward Hotel.

The renovation of Prince Edward Hotel, known also as Randolph House, was about one-third complete when a section or rear hotel wall collapsed Monday, March 2.

Owner Joseph Wood and his consultants mapped plans to save the southern wing and its Lee-Grant room, along with the adjoining Morton's Tavern, the oldest brick building in Prince Edward county.

On Saturday, however, new cracks developed in remaining hotel and tavern walls, apparently the result of attempts to raze the damaged wings while salvaging the rest. The new damage made rescue untenable The owner made the only decision left him — the entire building must be razed, a task completed by Sunday afternoon.

Financial loss to Wood has been estimated at about $125,000. He had purchased the property last September for $40,000 and had planned to spend about $200,000 in restoration. Furniture from the hotel will be put to public auction, he said.

The end of the hotel came, ironically, a little more than a year before the 100th anniversary of its most prominent moment as General Grant's headquarters from which he wrote the dispatches to Lee leading to Confederate surrender at Appomattox. Lee had also stayed there briefly April 7, 1865, a few hours before the Union general arrived. Both generals used the same room.

Col. Richard Anderson Booker, officer in General Lee's Army of Northern Virginia, was a war-time proprietor.

On the morning of April 7, 1865, Lee rested there briefly before conferring with Secretary of War John C. Breckenridge, Quartermaster General A. R. Lawton and Commissary General L. M. St. John at the Patrick H. Jackson home in Farmville. Lee then rejoined his forces across the Appomattox river in Cumberland county.

About noon the same day Grant arrived and set up his headquarters at the Randolph House. From that base, he opened correspondence with the Confederate leader. The first of his notes — later known as the "effusion of blood" notes — stated:

"The result of the last week must convince you of the hopelessness of further resistance on the part of the Army of Northern Virginia in this struggle. I feel that it is so, and regard it as my duty to shift from myself the responsibility of any further effusion of blood, by asking of you the surrender of that portion of the Confederate States Army known as the Army of Northern Virginia."

Lee received the note at a Cumberland church. He replied he disagreed about hopelessness of resistance but added, "I reciprocate your desire to avoid the useless effusion of blood," and asked what might be surrender conditions.

On April 8, Grant, still at the hotel, answered in part, "I would say that peace being my great desire, there is but one condition that I would insist upon, namely, that the men and officers surrendered shall be disqualified for taking up arms again against the government of the United States . . ."

Farmers Of Pamplin To Discuss Market

Dr. Gene McMurtry, associate extension economist for public affairs, will discuss with the Pamplin Adult Farmer Class on Thursday night, March 19, in the Pamplin Elementary School, a trip to the European Common Market.

Dr. McMurtry is on the staff of the Agricultural Economics Department at Virginia Polytechnic Institute, and has spent a great deal of study on the Common Market. He has traveled to Europe to get a first hand account. In his discussion with the Pamplin farmers, he will point out how the situation in Europe will affect the agriculture program here in Virginia and Appomattox County. Interested persons in the Pamplin area are invited to attend this meeting and hear the speaker.

On Thursday night, March 12, the Pamplin farmers will discuss the latest research in cured tobacco production as well as the present situation in the marketing of dark-cured tobacco. Mr. R. D. Sears, manager of the Charlotte Court House Experiment Station, and Mr. Tom Hall, general manager of the Virginia Dark - Fired Tobacco Growers Marketing Association, will be present to lead the discussion.

The Pamplin Adult Farmer Class is supervised by the instructors of vocational agriculture at Appomattox High School and is promoted by the Pamplin Ruritan Club.

County TB Tests All Negative

First grade students of the county, 138 white and 64 colored, were given Tuberculin tests in February. Dr. F. J. Clements, Director of the Appomattox County Health Department, announced Monday that all tests were negative.

The tuberculin test, according to Dr. Clements' explanation, is a "simple harmless one which reveals whether or not tuberculosis germs are in the body. Many healthy children at one time or another have been exposed to tuberculous infection, and as a result, some have unknowingly become infected," he said.

"In most children there is no reaction to the tuberculin test; the child has not been infected, whether exposed or not.

If the test had been doubtful or even positive in any of the children, the child would have received a chest x-ray, provide it without cost as part of the survey program, Dr. Clements said.

In cases of positive or doubtful tests, every adult in the household is invited to have a chest x-ray and every child under 16 years of age, a tuberculin test.
